A Thought for Today about our nation

by
Dr. Johnny R. Almond

“In the land of lobelia and tennis flannel, the rabbit shall burrow and the thorn revisit;
nettle shall flourish on the gravel court, and the wind shall say, ‘Here were decent, Godless, people;
their only monument the asphalt road, and a thousand lost golf balls.’”
- T.S. Eliot

Surely we can live our lives better than that!
We’re a superpower, after all...the world’s policeman!
“In God We Trust” is our motto...we’re not a bunch of heathens.
Our interstates make travel easy...albeit noisy and stressful at high speed.
And for stress relief, there’s always golf...some even claim they can worship there.

Sometimes, in more reflective moments, I wonder what America’s legacy will be for the world.
What can you and I do on a daily basis to set a nobler example than decent godlessness?
What kind of a spiritual monument will we leave those who sift through our trinkets?
Are we spinning our wheels...losing something more important than golf balls?

“Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD.”
(Psalm 33:12 ESV)
